

2006 Community Recognition Award Recipients

Camrose

Theresa Mokry

Theresa made presentations to 468 students in 2005 about how people are different but have the same value. Children gained new respect for people with disabilities and Theresa's courage has inspired her peers.

Carol Pound

Carol has been a member of the board at Camrose Association for Community Living for 10 years. Her efforts on behalf of persons with developmental disabilities are greatly appreciated.

Camrose Junior A Kodiaks

The Kodiak hockey club provides free seating to individuals served by the CAFCL, donates each year to its charity auction and occasionally allows volunteers to attend home games to ask for donations.

Kevin Sorenson, MP

Kevin has been a long-time supporter of the Camrose Association for Community Living. During the last federal election, by taking time to attend an election class at CAFCL, he recognized individuals with developmental disabilities as full citizens and eligible voters.

Drumheller

Ron Kenworthy

Ron serves on many volunteer board of directors, but his focus has always been on accessibility and inclusion for all people. He has amazing community connections and energy.

Robert Shield

Robert is respected for the time he devotes to providing musical entertainment and spiritual guidance to people living in Youngstown Home and loved for the genuine interest he takes in their well-being.

Lacombe, Innisfail, and Red Deer

Sandra Wieb

Sandra has been a volunteer friend to an individual living at Michener Services for over 10 years. Her friend says Sandra “likes to do fun stuff” with her and “she listens to me.”

L. J. MacDonald

L.J. has an outstanding record as a leader in the self-advocacy movement in Central Alberta. She is a great role model for her peers on how to work hard, learn more and grow to become what and who you want to be.

Elizabeth Kowalchuk

Elizabeth is an inspiration. Over the last 20 years she has moved from an institutional setting to living independently in the community. She has learned to speak up for what she wants and what she cares about.

Matt Gould

Matt conducts theatre workshops for adults with developmental disabilities. He helped the Rights Learning Theatre Group write two plays and the actors say his ‘positive attitude and zany sense of humour’ encouraged and motivated them.

Olds

Kathy Doyle & Family

Kathy and husband John own and operate Netook Construction Ltd. in Olds. As employers of individuals with developmental disabilities they are always positive and respectful and pay excellent wages.

Daryl Siemens

Daryl is a self-advocate who works at Sobeys in Olds. Customers say he is extremely helpful and always cheerful and friendly in his interactions with people. He is a valuable addition to his community.

WainwrightWilmar Implements (Adrian Murphy)

Wilmar Implements is a 'neighbourly' business that is always willing to help the community any way it can. It has been a supporter of Falcon Enterprises for several years by employing individuals with developmental disabilities.
